

Web In Context: When telling them about the web just isn't enough

Sara Marks
NELIG Meeting, December 2, 2005
Franklin Pierce College

Deborah Fallows, Senior Research fellow at Pew Internet and American Life Project

✓ "We are still in the infancy of the internet. People are still kind of so pleased that they can go there, ask for something and get an answer that it's kind of not on their radar screen to look in a very scrutinizing way to see what's in the background there."

Associated Press. (2005, January 23). Users confused search results, ads. Wired News. Retrieved December 1, 2005. <http://www.wired.com>

FSC Sessions: In the Beginning

- ✓ Constant repetition
- ✓ No library fundamentals
- ✓ No explanation of why the web was not adequate

FSC Sessions: Present

- ✓ Writing 1 focuses on our library and it's resources
- ✓ Writing 2 focuses on introducing research
- ✓ All other sessions build on research skills
- ✓ Professors can select elements for their classes based on what their class needs.

Web In Context

- ✓ Designed to show students why the web is not adequate for research and should always be viewed critically.
- ✓ Builds upon the standard Web Page Evaluation handout as well as the research
- ✓ Shows them how to make the most of their time on Google

It Starts With a Google Search...

<http://www.google.com>
